

Call for submission of research manuscripts.

We invite you to submit and recommend articles to the Journal of Horticultural Research (J. Hort. Res.). It is a peer-reviewed journal, which publishes original papers, short communications and review articles covering basic sciences as well as practical aspects of fruit, vegetable and ornamental plant research, with the focus on temperate zone horticultural crops. The main criteria applied for manuscripts' acceptance for publication are originality, scientific value and relevance for the horticultural sciences. The publication is free of charge. The Journal is published bi-annually. Parallel to the print, full texts of all the papers accepted for publication are freely accessible on-line at: <http://www.degruyter.com/view/j/johr> or www.inhort.pl. The Journal of Horticultural Research offers international visibility by the presence in a number of indexing and abstracting services. The Editorial Board ensures that the Journal maintains high standards and has international audience.

Please do not hesitate to contact us, if you have any questions.

Sincerely,

Editorial Board of the Journal of Horticultural Research
